WHEELING, FEBRUARY 23, 1889.

If we can't send a crushing fleet to Samoa we can send coal—to keep our steamers in motion.

Don't crack on his hinges with a hoarse, peculiar sound. 'Tisn't the wild Webster war whoop of the earlier days.

Do you hear that Democratic roar in the Kanawha Valley over Kenna's success? You may hear it again, and louder.

The Dorr opened at last. But through a strange fatality the windows of the Democracy are still guarded with burglar alarms.

The Register portrait is not a good likeness of the John E. Kenna of to-day. It might have done well enough six years ago.

Two Dakotas is one too many. One of them should find a new and distinctive name in all the rich material accessible to them.

CLEVELAND is going to do a very good thing on the fourth of March—quitting President. This action meets with unanimous approval.

SENATOR KENNA is feeling better than he did a week ago. Still he can scarcely realize the changed conditions. His lack beats the capital prize in the Havana lottery.

The London Times is now seen to deal only in stage thunder. There was no reality in its "Parliamentary cry," except as it is a crime to resort to forged or the condoning purchase of forged documents.

DEACON RICHARD SMITH, of the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette, will not challenge Governor Foraker. Why should he bend the pen to the sword? With his weapon he can cut and come again every day in the week.

AFTER a reasonable cold wave the borderland of Montana and Canada sends the cheering news that a massacre of white settlers is probable in that region. The weather bureau is much more sanguine than usual, hard as it is on the settlers.

This telegraph brings the intelligence that famine in certain China districts induced the inhabitants to attack the missionaries. American meat seems to find great favor except in Germany, where it is "wurst."

MR. RANDALL'S persistency on the line of his own tariff ideas places him under renewed suspicion as a Republican in disguise. The Free Traders loved by this time to have the Pennsylvania in sackcloth and ashes.

THE Paris press does not look kindly on the new French cabinet. In France this means more than the idle vapors of New York journals that have been "hoped." In New York harbor the statue of Liberty is always safe, while the Column Vendome is always in danger.

CONGRESS did not even pay to the late G. Washington the compliment of an endeavor to get through "business" before the idea of March is commendable, even though the commendation does not smack of Mr. Vernon patriotism. The memory of the Father of His Country is not altogether perpetuated by brass bands.

WHEN the essentially American game of base ball is played 'neath the shadows of the Pyramids it is time to recall the remark of Mr. Shakespeare that "imperial Caesar dead and turned away lay close a hole to keep the wind away." Honors and reputation are, after all, but the quick or the dead—mostly with the quick, even if it is a walking match, though twenty centuries look down on our deeds.

WHEELING did not outdo herself in decorations in honor of the Father of his country. It was noticeable that the most decorating was done by foreign-born citizens, and the German-Americans took the lead in setting a good example to the natives. We ought to do these things better. The frequent lack of the national colors, and the becoming observance of days full of meaning to the American people, have a wholesome effect on young minds, and some older minds, too.

FOUR new stars.

The President says amen to the proposition to admit the two Dakotas, Montana and Washington to the sisterhood of States and the galaxy of the Stars of the Union.

Each of these new States will bring into the Union the population and its character to entitle it to that proud distinction. The older States gain nothing by keeping out in the cold any Territory having a good claim to admission.

WEST VIRGINIA military.

One of the commendable acts of this Legislature is the passage of the military bill. The intention of this measure is to encourage the military spirit in West Virginia and to place this State in line with the other States of the Union for their own and the national defense.

WEST VIRGINIA'S veterans are marching home through Washington. The men we had there did themselves and their State great credit, receiving well deserved compliments from competent critics; but they were so few as to be swallowed up in the great turnout.

At that time the INTELLIGENCER showed the importance of a properly organized military force having the helpful encouragement of the State. The men themselves had done more than should have been expected of them. It was the duty of the Legislature to step in. That it has now done so is largely due to the intelligent interest taken by Governor Wilson. Adjutant General Wood has also done good service. It was fortunate that Major Gluck, of the First Regiment, was a member of the House of Delegates, and more fortunate still that he pushed the measure day and night. West Virginia's military men have done so well without any substantial encouragement from the State that the INTELLIGENCER is confident they will now give a splendid account of themselves.

The Dead Industries of Ireland.

His Majesty of England informs her faithful Lords and Gentlemen that their attention will soon be asked to measure for the development of the material resources of Ireland. Agitation in Ireland has done this much good at least.

If England will restore Ireland to the industrial condition in which she found her, the people of that distressed island, as intelligent and industrious as any in the world, will show a rate of progress that will astonish those who look upon an Irishman as fit only to carry a boot.

By fastening on Ireland the British article of Free Trade England has dried up the sources which furnished with remunerative employment thousands of Irish people and gave them a high place among the manufacturing people of the earth. The fate of Ireland is a pitiful protest against the policy of Free Trade.

The Borden-ton Girls.

The telegraph has told of the trouble in the Female College at Borden-ton, New Jersey. The girls of that institution don't like their teacher to tell them of the evils to which girls are subjected and which they should avoid. It is a reasonable presumption that the admonition was given in a becoming way.

Our American society is not in more moral than the European, and yet in the old world they deal much much more plainly than we do with some things concerning which young people should be warned.

Unfortunately it happens that some persons consider it worse to speak of certain evils than to yield to them, an error which nobody will impute to himself and from which few are free. It is not surprising that the Borden-ton girls have taken offense, though they would better take warning.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

They are still raising more Cain than cotton in the sunny South.—Detroit Tribune.

Bismarck for Secretary of State? I weaken.—Prince Bismarck.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

The mountain is going to St. Albans this time. In other words, it is going to Bismarck.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Why should a car driver be arrested for carrying a pistol when his life is in danger? Hasn't he a right to live?—New York Times.

If Arkansas suffers from harsh Federal legislation, it will be largely owing to the work of the assassins of John M. Clayton.—Arkansas Democrat.

Secretary Bayard says that Mr. Sewall is not in accord with his policy—though anybody could define his policy from day to day.—New York World.

The only salvation of the Republic, the only protection the people have against the aggression of the military power, are in an unpurchasable ballot.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Correspondents of the Record will please take notice that any good-better articles of the Prohibition topic will be printed in its columns. It is matter for reasoning, not for wrangling.—Philadelphia Record.

There are 12,000 Masons in Arkansas. John M. Clayton was a member of the fraternity in high standing and of high repute. Every Mason should contribute a dollar to the fund for the capture of his murderers.—Arkansas Democrat.

It is not improbable that the West will claim the right to nominate the Democratic candidate for 1892. The West will be very strong in the convention, and it may take a notion that it counts neither Governor Hill nor Mr. Cleveland.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Arkansas Legislature is evidently resolved to delay the appropriation of a reward for the capture of the assassins of Colonel Clayton until it shall be definitely known that the guilty parties are concealed beyond reach of possible discovery.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It is obvious to all intelligent citizens that the recent murder of John M. Clayton is in the present anomalous condition. Making every allowance for the inflammatory exaggeration of partisan reports, the vital fact that deliberate assassination has been employed to attain political results, stands practically undisputed.—Philadelphia Times (Ind. Dem.).

Whether or not Mr. Springer's measure becomes a law, it is not probable that the Indian Territory can long remain in its present anomalous condition. Good land is becoming too scarce in the West to leave 70,000 people in undisturbed possession of 44,000 acres, or more than 8,000 acres for every man, woman and child.—Philadelphia Press.

Southern newspapers are making a great deal of an exaggerated report about a Findlay, O., school teacher thumping a boy for thick-headedness. They are also making a great deal of the same acts of violence in Arkansas, North Carolina and Texas. Extreme measures in school discipline are not complained of in these sections.—Cincinnati Commercial.

A song has been dedicated to "Mrs. President Caroline Scott Harrison." Nonsense. There is no such woman. There is Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, or, if you prefer, Mrs. Caroline Scott Harrison, wife of President-elect Harrison, but Mrs. President—bail, it is enough to make the bones of President Grant White rattle in their coffin.—Minneapolis Tribune.

President Cleveland shows extremely bad taste, to say the least, in continuing to send nominations to the Senate, although his administration will end in less than a month. This pretty attempt to drain the cup of spoils to its dregs is being properly discouraged by the Republican majority in the Senate, which has pigeon-holed 200 of the nominations made this season.—Liberty Journal.

Tom's Toothache.

Little Tom suffered with the toothache and had worn himself out crying. His grandpa told him to be a man and not cry any more. The little fellow looked tearfully towards his aunt for sympathy and said:

"Grandpa thinks this is a slow, slow lightning bolt to catch."

Poor Tom got lots of pity after his remarkable definition of toothache.

Don't get caught.

This spring with your blood full of impurities, your kidneys and liver torpid, and the whole system liable to be prostrated by disease—get yourself into good condition, and ready for the unequalled and war by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It stands unequalled for purifying the blood, giving an appetite, and for a general spring medicine.

THE KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

The Growth of the Order—its Practical Value to the Country.

A remarkable instance of great results from small beginnings is the order of the Knights of Pythias, which has just celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary.

From a modest, yet a very insignificant source, the friendly union of five men, it has grown with such rapidity that it now has enrolled as members nearly 250,000 knights. Such increase, the earlier conditions considered, is marvelous, to be explained only by the high character and noble purpose of the order. It is not supposed that the five men who, in Washington, met for mutual aid, practice and social enjoyment, adopted and swore to a ritual one of the present, believed that they were laying the basis for an institution that should be their own life-time benefit, a wide-reaching power of incalculable beneficence.

From 3,500 lodges the good influence extends, the fundamental principles of brotherly benevolence, charity, and the work of the order, making each of these lodges the source of private service for the public welfare. When the first lodge was established the formation of secret societies was a vague, and there were many kinds and for many purposes. The theories and objects of the Knights of Pythias were, however, of breadth and character that appealed at once to the intelligence and sympathies of men. The conditions of its origin were not ephemeral. Its motive was human and humane, and therefore abiding. Though there was the underlying purpose of loyalty, devotion to country, a true and actual patriotic spirit, the vital and vitalizing element was love of man and the duty to help him. Mixing together steadily to real wants, bringing man into closer acquaintance with man were the aims in the active presence.

In their ritual is the idea that these knights of friendship have, through benevolence ever before them, seeking out the distressed, binding up wounds, assuaging grief, feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, and in general, relieving the distressed and the orphaned, comforting the sick. Nobler work there is none. Man can not live purer, more helpfully than in obedience to the laws of brotherhood. The order becomes laws under the oath that seals the knights of the order. Moral chivalry is the badge and growth of knightlyhood, and at this time the Pythians. Whatever projects be in the popular mind against secret orders there can be no admiration for the organization the members of which count life nothing in defense of the right, and who sacrifice self to the service of others when occasion demands.

There is a material value as well as an ethical and benevolent excellence in the order, for has a uniformed department numbering 24,000 members, who are trained, thoroughly disciplined soldiers. This body is not merely drilled to make picturesque parade, it is organized under the regular army plan, and is managed in strict conformity with the infantry tactics of the United States Army. Were there these men, sixty-six regiments of them, could march into battle as ready for action as old soldiers, and they would be sure they would acquire themselves like veterans. A good knight of Pythias may not fall in the hour of danger. His ritual teaches him that a brother's life is worth more than his own, and he will rarely risk his own to save that of other. Happily this is not theory alone; it has been beautifully demonstrated on more than one occasion. But it is to be hoped the knights will continue to make only bloodless conquests, and meet no hour of public need that will require them to put their soldier training to soldier use.

A Remarkable Yearling.

I have a little nephew who is just 14 months old, and we think him very intelligent and cunning for his age. When we say to him, "What's the matter with Harrison?" he exclaims, "Ye ya yigit."

When any of the older ones tell a joke or pun we say to him, "Now, baby, what do you say?" and he cries out, "Wah wah wah." (Bats).

A True Story.

When you don't feel well and hardly know what ails you, give B. B. B. (Bottled Blood Balm) a trial. It is a fine thing.

T. O. Calahan, Charlotte, N. C., writes: "B. B. B. is a fine tonic and has done me much good. I have been suffering from B. B. B. for many years, and it has been the best blood purifier made. It has greatly improved my general health."

An old gentleman writes: "B. B. B. gives me new life and new strength. If there is anything that will make an old man young, it is B. B. B. A. Shepherd, Norfolk, Va., August 10, 1888, writes: 'I depend on B. B. B. for the preservation of my health. I have used it in my family for nearly two years, and in all that time have not had a doctor.'

Thos. Pank, Atlanta, Ga., writes: 'I suffered terribly from B. B. B. for many years. I made up my mind to give it a trial, and I am now a new man. I would not take it in any other form. It is the best blood purifier I have ever used. I have used it in my family for nearly two years, and in all that time have not had a doctor.'
